

Bridge For People Who Don't Know One Card From Another

Bridge, a popular card game, has been enjoyed by people all around the world for many years. It is a game that requires strategy, concentration, and a keen understanding of the different cards involved. However, for those who don't know one card from another, Bridge may seem intimidating and overwhelming. Fear not, this article is here to guide you through the basics of Bridge and help you join in on the fun!

The Basics of Bridge

Bridge is a game played with a standard deck of 52 cards. The objective is to score points by winning tricks, which are played in rounds. Each player is dealt a hand of cards, and the bidding process begins. This is where players communicate with their partners to determine how many tricks they believe they can win based on their hand.

Once the bidding ends, the play begins. The player who won the bidding (also known as the declarer) leads the first card, and the other players must follow suit if they have a card of the same suit. The highest card of the leading suit wins the trick, and the winner leads the next round. The process continues until all the cards have been played.

Understanding the Cards

Now, let's dive into understanding the different cards in Bridge. A standard deck consists of four suits – spades, hearts, diamonds, and clubs. Each suit has thirteen cards: Ace (A), King (K), Queen (Q), Jack (J), 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, and 2.

Each card carries a point value, with Aces worth four points, Kings worth three points, Queens worth two points, and Jacks worth one point. The number cards have no point value.

It's important to note that Bridge uses a different ranking for the cards compared to other popular card games. In Bridge, the cards are ranked from highest to lowest as follows: Ace, King, Queen, Jack, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, and 2.
