Embrace the Long Descriptive Keyword for Alt Attribute

While many learning materials overlook the importance of image descriptions, Collins Cobuild integrates a long descriptive keyword strategy to their alt attribute. By doing so, they enhance accessibility for visually impaired learners while optimizing their web content for search engines. This shows their commitment to inclusivity and their understanding of the evolving digital landscape.

For example, consider an image depicting a group of people engaged in a lively conversation. Instead of a generic alt attribute like "people talking," Collins Cobuild utilizes a more descriptive keyword such as "diverse group of individuals engaging in a vibrant conversation." This not only enhances the learning experience but also adds value for those using screen readers or relying on alternative text.

Unlocking the Magic of Long Tail Clickbait Titles

To capture attention in today's fast-paced digital world, Collins Cobuild embraces the power of long tail clickbait titles. These titles are designed to evoke curiosity and engage the reader, offering a taste of what awaits them within the book's pages.
