This ATP serves as a single-source reference, consolidating existing doctrine and introducing innovative approaches for combined arms operations. It caters to both experienced battalion commanders and troops new to the combined arms environment, ensuring that everyone is equipped with the knowledge and expertise needed to succeed in their respective roles. The importance of this publication cannot be overstated, as it is instrumental in shaping the performance of combined arms battalions across the military.

Key Published Concepts

The ATP 90 FM 90 emphasizes several significant concepts that play a crucial role in the successful functioning of a combined arms battalion. Among these are:

- The Importance of Unity: Unity of effort, purpose, and action is essential for any combined arms battalion to achieve its objectives. The publication emphasizes the significance of fostering a strong sense of unity among all personnel, where each member understands their role in the bigger picture.

- Command and Control: Effective command and control structures are essential for the smooth execution of combined arms operations. The ATP 90 FM 90 provides detailed guidance on establishing and maintaining efficient command structures that can adapt to the changing dynamics of the battlefield.
- Integrated Fires: Integrating the firepower of different assets, such as artillery, armor, and air support, is a critical aspect of combined arms operations. This publication offers insight into the planning, coordination, and execution of fires to maximize their impact on the enemy.
- Intelligence Support: Accurate and timely intelligence is crucial for situational awareness and decision-making. The ATP 90 FM 90 outlines intelligence gathering and analysis techniques, ensuring that all personnel are well-informed to make informed choices on the battlefield.
- Synchronization of Sustainment: A well-coordinated sustainment plan is essential to maintain operational readiness. This ATP highlights the importance of synchronizing logistics, personnel, and resources to sustain combat operations effectively.

Benefits and Impact of ATP 90 FM 90

The release of ATP 90 FM 90 in February 2016 brought about numerous benefits and had a significant impact on combined arms battalions. Some key advantages include:

- Better Preparedness: By following the guidelines outlined in the ATP, personnel are better prepared to overcome the challenges of combined arms warfare. The publication equips troops with the necessary knowledge and understanding to operate smoothly and effectively, both during training and in real-life missions.

- Enhanced Coordination: The ATP emphasizes the importance of unity among different elements. This leads to improved coordination between the various branches within the combined arms battalion, enabling them to work seamlessly towards accomplishing shared objectives.
- Streamlined Operations: The publication's detailed procedures and tactics help streamline operations, optimizing the use of available resources and minimizing bottlenecks. This increases the overall efficiency of the combined arms battalion, ensuring quick responses to changing situations on the battlefield.
- Enhanced Flexibility: With an emphasis on adaptive planning and execution, the ATP 90 FM 90 enables combined arms battalions to respond dynamically to evolving threats. This flexibility is critical in modern warfare scenarios, where agility and adaptability are vital for success.

The Future of ATP 90 FM 90 Combined Arms Battalion

The ATP 90 FM 90 is a living document, continuously evolving to stay relevant in the face of emerging threats and technological advancements. While the February 2016 version represents a significant milestone, subsequent updates ensure its continued effectiveness in shaping the conduct of combined arms operations.

As military tactics and technologies advance, the ATP 90 FM 90 will serve as a guide for incorporating these developments into combined arms battalions. The ongoing review and revision process ensures that the publication remains a valuable resource for troops at all levels, facilitating their ability to adapt and succeed in future combat environments.
