With the interior furnishings of your own home is hardly different than with clothes or hairstyles. At some point, the old and the acquaintance were simply completely satisfied. A new look has to come. It does not always have to be the costly total conversion. Even with little money and a few clever handles, the own four walls can simply be completely redesigned.

It is a feeling that slowly paves the way into consciousness, while the view sweeps through the apartment: something has to change. What has fallen for years, one suddenly gets tired. Always the same four walls, always the same furniture and colors, in the meantime one had seen plenty of enough. "If you have the need to change your environment, it is because you have changed yourself," explains the residential psychologist Uwe Raban Linke. The old-tried one tweaks and clamps like a suit, from which one has grown out.
