An Ode to Persian Poetry

Persian poetry boasts a long-standing tradition that predates Hafez and encompasses a vast array of styles, themes, and voices. However, Hafez is widely regarded as one of the most celebrated and influential figures in Persian literature, having lived during the 14th century. His poetry reflects the cultural and spiritual essence of his homeland, Shiraz, a city renowned for its contributions to Persian art and literature. Exploring the works of Hafez allows readers to witness the essence of Persian poetry, an art form deeply intertwined with the fabric of Persian identity.

The Essence of Hafez's Poetry

Hafez's poetry captures the universal human experiences of love, longing, and the quest for spiritual enlightenment. Each verse is infused with deep symbolism and profound metaphors, inviting readers to embark upon a journey of self-discovery and reflection. Whether he is expressing the ecstasy of divine union or contemplating the transience of life, Hafez's words resonate with an ethereal beauty that defies linguistic and cultural barriers.

This bilingual edition of Faces of Love: Hafez and the Poets of Shiraz has the original Persian verses facing the English translations. The three Shirazi poets whose work is featured here, Hafez, Jahan Malek Khatun, and Obayd-e Zakani, lived at the same time (the mid fourteenth century), and certainly knew of one another – Obayd wrote at least two poems about Jahan Khatun, and Jahan Khatun quotes Hafez in one of her poems. It's extremely likely that, during the 1340s and early 1350s at least, they also knew one another personally. The poetic life of the city during this period centered on the court of the ruling family, the Injus; Jahan Khatun was an Inju princess, while her uncle, Abu Es'haq, the head of the family and the ruler of the city, was a great patron of poets.
