This is the story of my encounter with the Kentucky Board of Medical Licensure. An experience every physician, perhaps every licensed professional, should fear more than a malpractice suit. It can lead to the loss of license or the loss of insurance company accreditation, and therefore livelihood, instantly, without practical recourse, on grounds with no merit.

When you find a patient lies to you about another patient abusing his prescription, in retaliation for not sharing it, you should begin to appreciate your own risk.

When you realize your medical board is comprised of good ol' boys with no transparency and a poor grasp of concepts like right and wrong your concern level should reach yellow. When you learn a Rasputin lurks among them, orange, and when their medical investigator walks into your office the terror level is red. You should pray that day never comes, but be prepared, it is an increasingly common event.

The story is told with good humor and progresses to suggestions to improve the system; for which we can work and hope.

Read it and be prepared. Send a copy to your legislator and promote change.
